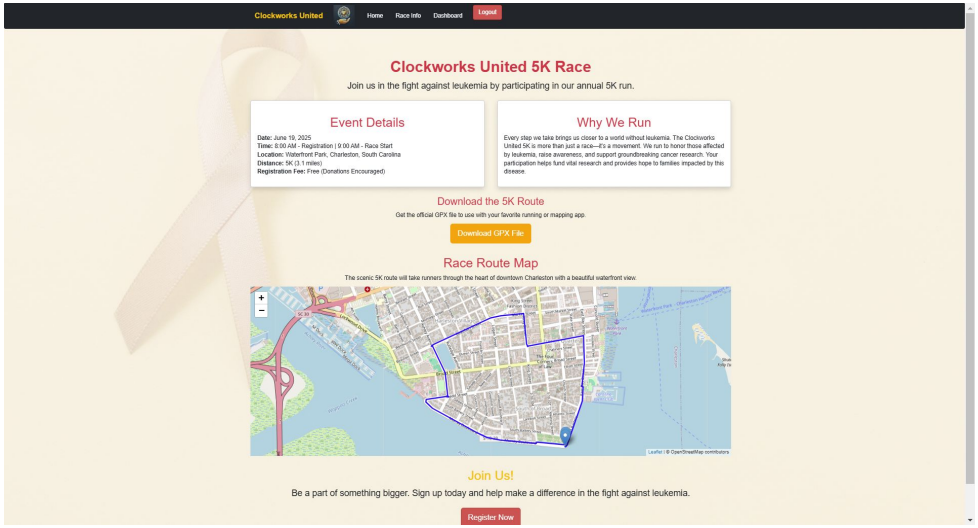
Clockworks

James Wood, Marina Skegro, and Brayden Kirkland

Home Page

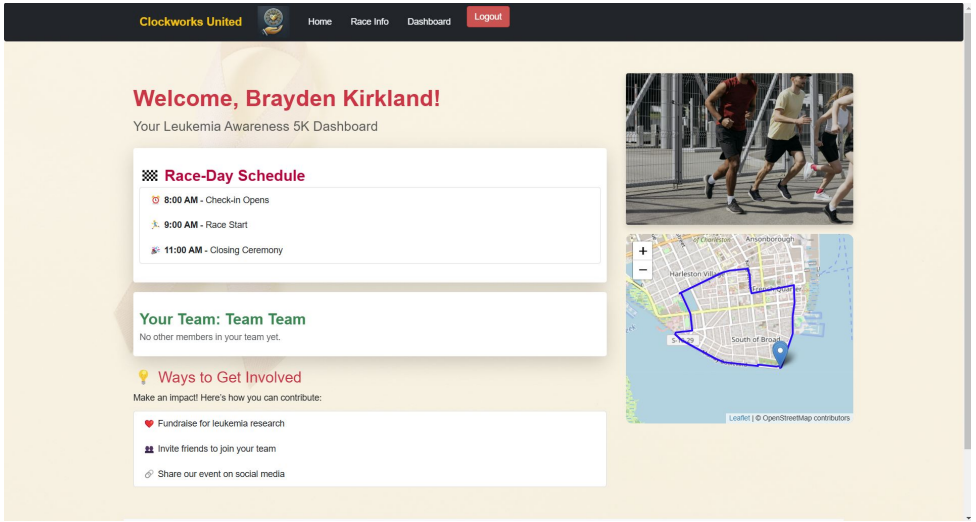
- Our Project's 5K run is to spread awareness about Leukemia, and so our home page and most other pages utilize a light orange/beige color, the symbolic color of Leukemia awareness. Each page that sports the color is also sporting a Leukemia awareness ribbon in the background.
- From this and all other pages, users have access to a taskbar of other pages, including Home, Race Info, Dashboard, and the About section. A logout button is also included.
- In order to signup for the race, users may click the "Sign Up Now" button featured on the home page, or click "Learn More" to be brought to the Race Info page.

Race Info



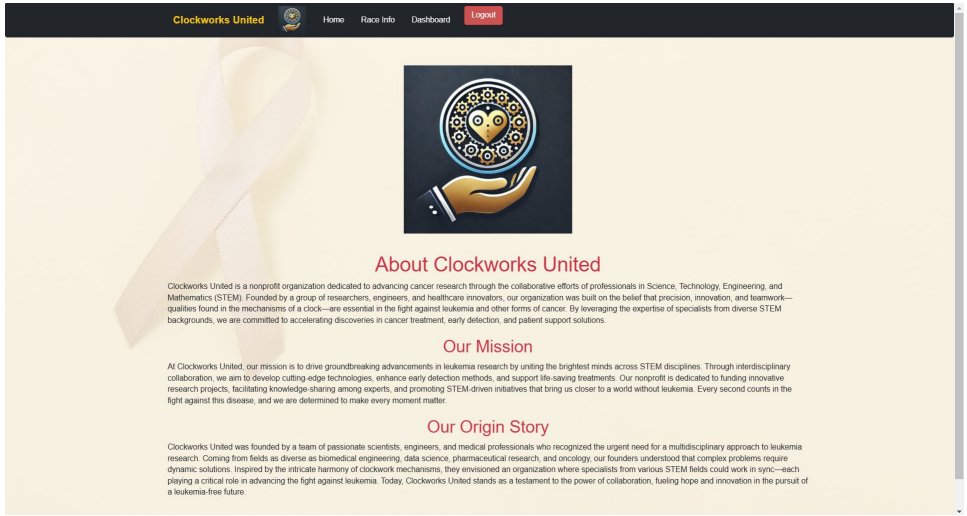
- This page displays the details of the event, the purpose of the run, and an in-app, interactable map that displays the route that will be taken.
- Included is a button to download the GPX file of the map and run route, and another button to sign up for the race, featured at the bottom of the page.
- The picture displayed here on the left has been zoomed out for presentation purposes.

Runner Dashboard



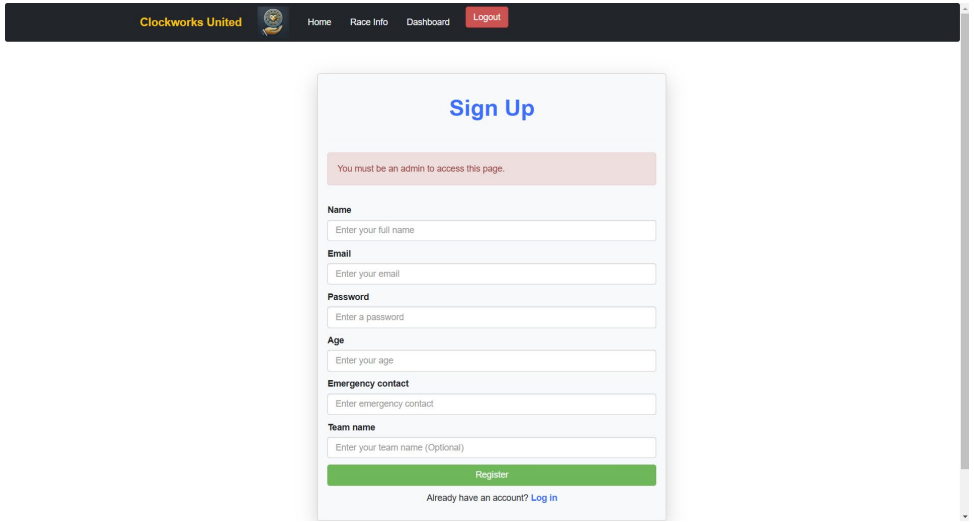
- Here, users that have signed up as a runner may view information on the event such as the schedule, a map and route, and information on their team and team members.

About Page



- This page features details on our project’s organization, including general information, our mission, and how our organization came about as well as our logo.

Sign Up Page



- This page allows users to register themselves as an active runner and event participate for the 5K featured.
- Users will be asked for their name, email, a password for their account, their age, an emergency contact, and their team name
- The page also includes an option for existing users to log in, featured at the bottom of the Sign Up entity